They were saved by a hair's breadth. Capting R. T. Brown wanted to know if the delegates from the Tenth Ward, who were elected on the night after that designated by the Executive Committee, were to be admitted. Delegate Shotwell thought that was a point to be decided in the committee The chorus then sang in forgotten selecfinally selected.

As usual, there was a contest between the I have been found with them always, and I have been found with the nomination.

A DARKY AS CHAIRMAN, one as secretary, Delegate Porter sang a solo with Wagnerian accompani-ment, the burden of which was that he wanted a committee of ten appointed on credentials. An amendment that the Chair appoint nine was carried. Ex-Po-liceman Boyd wanted the Chair "to 'point de committee from de wards what dey ain't no 'fusion in." A mulatto dude wanted to know how the Chair could appoint without knowing who the delegates were; The Chair rubbed HIS HAND OVER HIS HAIR and said disconsolately that would be an impossibility. Everybody then got around the table and climbed up on top of it and under it and twigged the chairman's goatee, blew in his off ear and tickled him under the fifth rib and shook their greasy tingers in his face until he became almost a raving maniac, and was once in the act of raising the umbrella he used as a ferule, under the impression that it was about to rain rocks. The Tenth Ward threatened to boit, and Ham Gordon got up on a chair and practiced vocal gymnastics until somebody put him out.

DELEGATE PORTER alled the attention of the c'airman to the fact that he was acting like a man and a gentleman, and he wanted everybody to get away from the table. The Chair finally appointed the following COMMITTEE ON CREDENTIALS:

Henry Trobridge, E. O. Tyler, J. C. Morgan, C. H. Shotwell, L. M. Barker, W. H. Cole, R. R. Church, L. H. Fields, W. H. Cole, R. R. Church, L. H. Fields, D. W. Featherstone. The committee retired, and during their absence orations were made by Phillips, Marcus, Bell, Williams, Porter and Moore. The latter said he hoped nothing would be nominated except a straight Republican ticket. At this juncture the Committee on Credentia's appropriate that they were ready dentia's announced that they were ready to report. The chairman called up PATROLMEN STEVENS AND SMITH, colored, who took places on either side of him. "Now," said the chairman, "I want everybody to get off the stage except dele-gates or the police will put you off." Thus apported the chairman listened to the report of the Committee on Credentials. Wm. Porter protested against the admission of certain members from the Fifth Ward. He had been present at that elec-tion and had been chosen with others who were ignored by the Committee on Credentials. It was unfair and would be injurious to the Republican party not to admit at least a part of the body of dele-gates from the Fifth Ward of which he was a member. It was moved and seconded that the convention vote upon the report by wards and districts. Pending that question Capt. Brown moved to the center of the circle and throwing back

HIS SOILED DUSTER sweat oozing odoriferously from the pores of his skin, declared in a voice of thunder that he wanted to "preface the subject," which he did by raking Porter over the coals. With the aid of a piece of scantling the chairman put the question that the report be carried by wards and districts, which was carried. After a selection from Der Debbisinger, to which the leader's scantling beat an accompaniment, the house went into a bedlam of the whole, and the thin legs of the chairman waved about under the tail of his rumpled alpaca coat in a most eccentric way. . The nomination of Phillips was made unanimous, and a big darky with a white vest selzed the scantling and banged the table until the teeth of the delegates chattered. The nomination by acclamation of John T. Moss, for judge, was attempted but the convention would not have it, and as it was then after 7 o'clock, a motion to adjourn until 9 o'clock at the courthouse was carried with a hungry howl.

J. E. Bigelow said he didn't expect to be a candidate, but his name had been proposed and he would make the usual pledge. He protested against the nomination of any man who was not a Republican and simply agreed to support the ticket for the sake of office when he could J. H. Strickland said: "Gentlemen, I am here to advocate the cause of John T. Moss, who has recently become converted. The chairman, who had procured a better gavel than the scantling, banged it on the desk and made a speech, rapping so hard at the end of each sentence that it was impossible for any delegate to make himself heard in answer.

There was another double-jointed motion, which resulted in a ballot being called for. Deacon Trobridge wanted to speak in favor of Bigelow. Then he got in a few more sentences and drowned all replies with the scantling. The scheme worked so well that he kept it up. Meanwhile the country delegates began to fumble in their vest pockets for the watches and look uneasy.

IT WAS GROWING LATE and they had to catch the train. This point was made, but had no effect. A recess was taken to wait for the report of the Committee on Resolutions. The delegates amused themselves in the meantive by fights, red lemonade and green water-melons.

At the expiration of twenty minutes the convention was again called to order and the fireworks began, while the chairman beat his famous tattoos with the scantling. A squabble over the admission of William Porter as the proxy of Robert McKenna then arose, and it was finally decided that the delegates of the Sixteenth District cast the entire vote of that district.
